

Jetcorp Technical Services Sees Surge in Maintenance Business

St Louis, Missouri, April 19, 2010

Jetcorp Technical Services Inc., is seeing a steady stream of past, current, and new maintenance customers come through its facility recently. With a strong customer base built by around clock customer service, a dedication to quality and safety, and a wealth of skilled technicians Jetcorp has been near the top of the maintenance, repair, and overhaul industry for over 25 years.

In the March & April alone Jetcorp has completed three (3) heavy inspections on Challenger 601 and 604 aircraft. Other maintenance inspections completed in the last two months or currently ongoing included: 12 year inspections on multiple Lear 60's; a Phase A thru D inspection on an additional Lear 60 as well as installing an Aircell Access II satphone system and interior refurbishment; a Lear 31 Phase A thru D inspection with a 406 Mhz ELT installation and interior refurbishment; a Falcon 20 A, A+, 2A, 2A+ inspection package; A full C check on a Falcon 50 aircraft due to be complete by the end of April. "We have seen a steady rise in our maintenance levels over the past three months and are looking forward to continue to serve our customers in a way they have come to expect from the people at Jetcorp" stated Troy Funk, Vice President.

With a combination of its new ownership and its roots in the maintenance industry Jetcorp is looking to continue its tradition of providing high-end maintenance services to companies and individuals across North America and the rest of the world.
